FUND-raising can be fun as the male residents of Hampstead Norreys found out on Friday night.

When about 150 people turned up for the monthly disco at the village hall, they found there was an extra attraction.

Five teenage go-go dancers from Abingdon had offered to attend the event to help raise money to replace books and equipment destroyed at The Downs School, Compton in a fire recently.

The group, called Sellecktion, created quite a stir during their performance. The event was organised by Mr. Leslie Perry, a former pupil of The Downs School who runs Jet Disco which normally plays at the hall.

He wanted to do something for the school and after the disco he went to the school and handed over £45 — the profit from the evening.
